JOEL EURICH

Vice President, Global
Compliance and EH&S,
Molex

BIOGRAPHY

As Vice President, Global Compliance and Environmental Health & Safety (EH&S), Joel Eurich leads Molex's global compliance program, including commercial compliance, EH&S and security, product stewardship, and employee health and wellness. He assumed the role in 2017 after serving as Director, EH&S. In 2020, Joel was named a member of the Molex Global Leadership Team.

Joel joined Molex in 2000, after two years at Cardell Corporation where he supported EH&S programs at local manufacturing plants and regional operations.

In his career with Molex, Joel has taken on more global leadership responsibility and has transformed the company's EH&S and Product Stewardship capability to support the company's Vision and business goals. Starting with a single team member, Joel has grown and developed a global team with diverse expertise and resources to support each of Molex's market-focused businesses and global footprint.

Outside of Molex, Joel serves on the board of directors for the Responsible Business Alliance. He earned a Bachelor of Science degree in Industrial Health and Safety and Industrial Hygiene from Oakland University and a Master's in Business Administration from Walsh College.

He and his wife reside in Aurora, IL and have three children.
